Looking Even Better!

Staying Sharp

By: Arnold Zegarelli

Staying sharp is based on good discipline, which is doing what you should do, even though you don't feel like doing it, but doing it anyway.

Eat and Drink Wisely:

Eat smaller meals more often; plus many vegetables, fruits and greens. Potatoes, rice, corn and pears are filled with carbohydrates; you can eat them, but don't overdo it. Pasta, bread and bread products are also higher in carbs, so limit your intake. If you are going to eat bread, eat whole wheat, whole grain or multi-grain.

Drink as much water as you can comfortably consumer. Soft drinks that are not sugar-free should be avoided. Skim milk and non-fat cottage cheese are your best bets for dairy products.

Sugar, alcohol and salt are triggering foods. The more you have, the more you want. They trigger the appetite and play havoc with the pancreas and insulin which can cause diabetes and fat storage.

Exercise Regularly:

Do aerobic (oxygen burning exercise such as walking, jogging and so on) plus anaerobic (weight bearing type exercises.) Aerobic exercise will help your overall conditioning, while weight training is excellent for muscle improvement or maintenance. Exercising with weights will also help your bone density and prevent osteoporosis.

Cultivate Stimulating Pastimes and Interests:

Learning or experiencing new things will help sharpen a healthy mind.

Be Flexible:

When you are rigid or unbending you are more likely to snap. Learn to roll with the punches; it will hurt a lot less. Don't worry or fret over things over which you have no control. Keep stress to a minimum. It's not what happens to you, but what happens within you that gives your control.

Be Organized:

Eliminate the unnecessary and organize the essential. Setting up daily routines and habits lightens the load on your memory and frees it up for tasks that are more important. "First, we make our habits and then they make us."

Visualize What You Want, Not What You Are Trying To Avoid:

Don't say, "I don't want to get sick," say, "I want to stay well." "Whatever you vividly imagine, ardently desire, sincerely believe possible and enthusiastically act upon will eventually and inevitably come to pass."

Write it Down:

The shortest pen or pencil is better than the longest memory. Use a checklist and a daily planner.

Adapt and Adjust:

If you want long time survival, realize that nothing stays the same. "Change is neither good nor bad, it just is."

Live With this Principle:

"What is, is." It doesn't matter if it is fair or not, it is how we deal with a problem that turns it into a positive or stressful situation.

Count Your Blessings and Also Learn From Your Mistakes:

Take pleasure in your religion, your family, your friends and your job.

If you follow these disciplines, you will be healthier, have more energy and look more youthful; in addition, you will act and stay sharp.

"Knowing is not enough, you must apply; Willing is not enough, you must do."

The Pieces of the Penguins' Playoff Push

By: Stacy Kauffman Sports Feature Writer for Nightwire, Photos ©2013 Pittsburgh Penguins/Joe Sargent.

As the regular season winds down, the Pittsburgh Penguins have continued to heat up. With just two games left before the opening round of the playoffs, the Pens have put together a 22-3 record in the months of March and April. Sandwiched in the midst of that stellar 25 game span was the ever thrilling, and sometimes anxiety inducing, trade deadline drama fest. Who's on the block? Will the team go all in? Do you go after big name rental players for a Stanley Cup run or resign-able pieces for the long term?

This season was no exception. But that's nothing new for General Manager, Ray Shero. The trade deadline has traditionally been a very busy time for the man who has held the G.M. office since 2006. This is especially true when he can sniff a championship. Like in the 2007-08 campaign, when in addition to picking up the massive Hal Gill, he dealt for superstar Marian Hossa, who abruptly signed with the Detroit Red Wings after the Penguins lost to them in the Stanley Cup finals that year. Why? Because Hossa, in his own words, "wanted to win a championship," which Pittsburgh proceeded to do the following year, beating Hossa's Red Wings with the key deadline acquisitions of Chris Kunitz and Bill Guerin. Hal Gill was happy to stick around and hoist Lord Stanley's Cup, I'm sure.

And although the deadline deal bringing James Neal and Matt Niskanen to the Burgh from Dallas didn't provide the same result, it's still paying dividends as both players continue to contribute. But after a couple of disappointing postseason performances, there may have been a sense of urgency this year. The work Shero has put in this time around might possibly go down as the most impactful in his career with Mario's men. It will certainly be remembered as the most exciting, unless you are a Bruins fan of course. Then maybe you'd categorize it as the most heart breaking. Watching future Hall of Fame forward and longtime Calgary Flame captain, Jarome Iginla, hand pick the Penguins after it was widely reported he was already on a plane to Beantown, had to crush the B's fan base. Pittsburgh of course, was pleasantly surprised.

Prior to the addition of Iginla, affectionately known as "Iggy", Shero added more veteran experience and depth when he went back to the Stars' well to grab their captain, Brandon Morrow and double dipped into the Western Conference to acquire defenseman Douglas Murray from the San Jose Sharks. All together, those three players bring with them 189 games of NHL playoff experience.

The euphoria created by all of those moves just inflated the fandom's growing confidence in a group that was already on a history making tear as the Pens ultimately became the only team to ever record an undefeated month when playing 10 or more games when they went 15-0 in March. Even though the team was riding high, there were questions too. How would all the pieces fit together? Would the new guys gel? Is there enough ice time to go around?

And then it happened. What nobody wanted to happen happened. Sidney Crosby went down. When Brooks Orpik's slapshot deflected up into Crosby's face, breaking his jaw and scattering some teeth across the ice, the entire hockey world seemed to stop on its axis, collectively holding its breath as visions of an aggravated head injury haunted fans. Thankfully, that was not the case and as the team awaits their captain's return to the ice, the depth gained through the new acquisitions to that point has maintained the level of success the Pens have had throughout this truncated season. Just in the nick of time as well, because when Crosby went down, he joined Evgeni Malkin, who has since made it back to the lineup, Kris Letang, who was suffering from a broken toe but is also back, and resurgent defenseman, Paul Martin, who has yet to make his return from a broken hand.

Whew! So many additions yet so many key players dropping like flies. And just when you thought he had hung up his trading pants, as the deadline to swap loomed the afternoon of April 3rd, Mr. Ray constructed yet another deal. Shero brought in the waiver-clearing Jussi Jokinen, a versatile forward from the Carolina Hurricanes, for a late round conditional draft pick, which fortified a suddenly thinning forward corps. He couldn't have joined the team at a better time, either. Against the New York Rangers, as Jokinen made a splash scoring the only regulation goal and then the shootout game winner during his Consol Energy Center debut, James Neal went down with a concussion and is out indefinitely.

Is there a silver lining to all of these injuries to impact players? There just might be. Even without their big dogs, the Penguins have continued to play well, losing just once since that game against the Rangers. They could potentially round out March and April with a 24-3 record to finish the regular season. Brenden Morrow, Jarome Iginla and Jussi Jokinen have become a big part of the game plan, contributing all around the ice, while Douglas "Crankshaft" Murray has definitely added another level of toughness. They've gotten a chance to get acclimated to their new teammates. To get a feel for their new surroundings. To familiarize themselves with a new system. If there were to be injuries, this was the best time to have them.

What is the key to the success of Ray Shero's deals? Hunger. All of the new additions had spent their careers with one franchise, except Jokinen who had been on three previous teams, without raising Lord Stanley's cup. None of them have kissed the cool silver plates or had their names engraved on the rings, cementing their championship legacies. Nearly 35 pounds of hockey history are waiting to be hoisted over players' heads and they want it to finally be theirs.

As Crosby, Neal and Martin get incorporated back into the lineup for the second season, it's safe to say the Penguins will be the favorites to come out of the Eastern Conference and play for the Stanley Cup, because even without them, you could say the same. Thanks, Ray.

PYROTECNICO

PRESENTS PYROFEST 2013 – MAY 25!

By: Joyce Campisi

I am so honored and thrilled to tell you about PyroFest 2013 at Hartwood Acres on May 25. Nightwire was invited to cover last year's inaugural event and I have to admit no one including myself (a self-professed fireworks junkie), was excited. It was ho-hum, just another Pittsburgh fireworks show with the same old, same old displays. I have travelled around the world and have been privileged to watch world-class over the top shows. However, I have to tell you how wrong I was about last year's show...Last year's PyroFest show blew me away. Hands down it was absolutely breath taking, heart stopping fantastic with non-stop displays of pyrotechnics choreographed and executed perfectly to music. Like a work of art. Then just when I thought the show couldn't get any better, well think again... it did! So, hold on to your hat Pittsburgh because when dusk falls over Hartwood Acres this upcoming Memorial Day weekend spectators will experience another world class show as promised by Rocco Vitale, Creative Director for PyroFest 2013. This is an opportunity to experience world-class pyrotechnics in our very own back yard. We are so fortunate to have a company like Pyrotecnico right here in Pittsburgh willing to share their expertise and creativity that they have presented to so many around the world to us. Pyrotecnico is home to some of the most talented and creative talent in the world. PyroFest 2013 provides them with the opportunity to truly be creative without limitations which will allow them to present to us the very "best of shows" award winning performances and mind blowing creations.

Nightwire: Why did you decide to host a second PyroFest?

Pyrotecnico: "After the tremendous amount of positive feedback from the first event, we want to ensure Pyrofest will be an annual Pittsburgh tradition. I think these kinds of pyrotechnic events are great for the public because they get the opportunity to see many different pyrotechnic designs/ products not seen elsewhere in the US. We want to continue to grow PyroFest to be the best international festivals of it's kind and potentially expand it to more days in 2014." - Stephen Vitale, President and CEO of Pyrotecnico Nightwire: What can attendees expect different from last year's festival?

Pyrotecnico: "A display presented by the famous and internationally-acclaimed Spanish company, Ricardo Caballer Ricasa, the world premiere of Pyrotecnico's "Rock Loves II," and the inaugural "Fantasy in the Sky Fireworks Challenge which will give amateurs a chance to have their own display design fired at PyroFest. Rock Loves II will be another award-winning caliber display with the world's top products and design influences. It will not only be as big, loud, and tightly choreographed as the first version, but it will also feature a surprise 80' structure that will be placed right in front of the crowd. The main stage will feature a new headliner "The Clarks" and the kids zone will be enhanced to include more interactive games including a virtual graffiti wall and mobile gaming center" - Rocco Vitale, Creative Director of Pyrotecnico Nightwire: Why should someone attend?

Pyrotecnico: "It is a great affordable family event where you can watch 6 different fireworks displays along with live performances from top local bands between displays including Pittsburgh favorite "The Clarks". Along with many other activities including a kids zone and craft area. For approximately the same amount of money to take your family to dinner or go to see one band play, why wouldn't you take advantage of all this and have the opportunity to see some of the highest quality fireworks displays on the globe. We promise this isn't like any 4th of July display you will see in Pittsburgh or other cities, it is of a much higher caliber" - Derek Weber, Event Director, PyroFest

For this year's show the choreographers at Pyrotecnico have been working since last August on a follow-up to their award-winning display, Rock Loves, a five-act production that won Pyrotecnico the Gold Jupiter Award at the world's most prestigious fireworks festival, LaRonde in Montreal. After countless hours, Pyrotecnico is ready to present "Rock Loves II" to the thousands who will be in attendance at this year's PyroFest, America's Largest Fireworks Festival. For those who witnessed the amazing "Rock Loves" display at last year's PyroFest, the creative engineers at Pyrotecnico promise an even better display with the sequel. "Rock Loves II will be another award-winning caliber display with the world's top products and design influences," said Rocco Vitale, Creative Director at Pyrotecnico. "It will not only be as big, loud, and tightly choreographed as the first version, but it will also feature a surprise structure that will implement 80 foot towers that will be placed right in front of the crowd.”

Event Director, Derek Weber explained that the fireworks will tell the story of the evolution of rock-n-roll like only Pyrotecnico can. “It is a pyro-musical that will take people on a journey through the decades of rock-n-roll while conveying the influences of some of the top rock artists over the past 60 years,” Weber said.

Rock Loves II will be just one of the many displays that visitors to PyroFest will experience, including a display presented by the famous and internationally-acclaimed Spanish company, Ricardo Caballer Ricasa and the inaugural “Fantasy in the Sky Fireworks Challenge” display.

Spectators from all over the world have witnessed the majesty and breathtaking fireworks displays that the world famous Ricardo Caballer, S.A. Ricasa has been producing for hundreds of years, and now visitors to this year’s PyroFest, will also get to experience one of their crowd pleasing shows.

More recently known for producing the closing ceremony fireworks for the 2000 Olympic Games in Sydney, Australia, Ricardo Caballer, Jr., direct from Valencia, Spain, will join Pyrotecnico to present one of the evening displays at America’s Largest Fireworks Festival this Memorial Day weekend.

“I would like to see PyroFest continue and become even better known in the area. I think these kinds of pyrotechnic events are good for the public because they can see so many different pyrotechnicians showing their best and enjoying different cultures of fire,” said Caballer, Jr., whose family has been creating “color-up celebrations” since 1881. “People should come out to enjoy different fireworks. Ricasa is not only a display company, but a manufacturer. We produce our own fireworks and like to use them in our shows because this allows us to show different effects,” he said.

“What better place to have one of the top international fireworks companies debut in the U.S. other than America’s Largest Fireworks Festival? They have won more than 50 international fireworks competitions along with producing the Olympics making them one of the most decorated companies on the globe,” Vitale said. “Their participation with Pyrotecnico will truly make this an all-star line-up of fireworks display designers.” Creative Director Rocco Vitale agrees that this show will be of a caliber that few have seen before.

Pittsburgh fan favorite, The Clarks, will be the headliner for this year’s PyroFest. Since the mid-eighties, The Clarks have been playing “good, old fashioned rock - n- roll” and now on Saturday, May 25, they will kick off the nighttime festivities at Pyrotecnico’s PyroFest.

“The band is excited to get back out to Hartwood Acres to play an outdoor show. We love the venue,” said Greg Joseph, bass guitar and vocals. “This is a great place to see a show and a great place for bands to perform.” Joseph said that the band is also looking forward to being a part of an event of this caliber. “PyroFest is the largest event of its kind and The Clarks like to be involved in exciting local events. We can’t wait to see all of the fireworks on display and kickoff our summer concert season at Hartwood Acres,” he added.

This all day family Memorial Day Event promises to have something for everyone... trust me you won’t be disappointed...tickets are on sale now at www.pyrofest.com

KORN

KORN embrace the future on THE PATH OF TOTALITY, their tenth full-length studio album and second for Roadrunner Records.

Infusing dubstep anarchy into their signature sound, the legendary quartet stand on the cusp of a musical revolution for both hard rock and electronica. KORN are no strangers to revolution or innovation though. In fact, they've been purveyors of heavy music's progression since forming in Bakersfield, CA in 1993 and becoming one of the most influential entities that the genre has ever seen.

Their legendary self-titled debut took the world by storm with its schizophrenic metallic catharsis. No one had ever played heavy music with such personal lyrics and funk-out grooves. Immediately, they earned a place in the hearts of fans across the globe. However, their third offering, 1998's Follow the Leader, bridged the gap between hip hop and heavy metal seamlessly. It also solidified them as inspirational innovators. Numerous acts "followed the leader," and heavy metal underwent a renaissance in the early 2000's with KORN at the forefront. Slipknot, Staind, Disturbed and countless others nodded to the group as an inspiration. In addition, they've garnered two Grammy Awards—one for Best Short Form Video for "Freak on a Leash" from Follow the Leader and one for Best Metal Performance for "Here to Stay" from 2002's Untouchables—and sold 35 million albums worldwide.

However, they're ushering in a new horizon for heavy music with THE PATH OF TOTALITY. Collaborating with dubstep heavyweights Skrillex, Excision, Downlink, Noisia, Feed Me, 12th Planet and Flinch, KORN have constructed a hypnotic hybrid of dubstep and metal. Bouncing from polyrhythmic guitar pummeling into drastic electro drops, the music is dark, dangerous and definitive KORN.

"It's future metal," declares vocalist Jonathan Davis. "We're mixing metal and electro music, and you're not supposed to do that. Since day one, KORN has always been all about going against the grain,

KORN LIVE May 15 - Rostraver Ice Garden Arena - 7:30pm
tickets at ticketfly.com or 1-877-4-FLY-TIX experimenting, and trying to take music different places."

Guitarist James "Munky" Shaffer affirms, "You need to be pushed out of your comfort zone to take chances. We were able to do that by collaborating with all of these brilliant writers and challenging ourselves. We're still pushing ourselves to grow."

In 2009, Davis began to envision the place where KORN would venture next. A lifelong electronic music fan and DJ, he'd cruise Beatport and fervently download the latest tracks from various underground dubstep artists.

Last year, his obsession intensified. Speaking to his band mates, the aforementioned Shaffer [Guitar], Reggie "Fieldy" Arvizu [Bass], and Ray Luzier [Drums], the four agreed to tread new ground and incorporate dubstep into a couple of tracks. Davis called longtime KORN fan and rising electronic music star Skrillex to join the band at his studio for collaboration.

After merely three hours, "Get Up!" was born. A staggering deluge of wobbling synths, bludgeoning riffs, and propulsive hooks, the song instantly became a 21st century arena-ready anthem in the vein of "Blind." KORN released "Get Up!" in April 2011 and it rapidly caught fire online. After the song's impromptu debut with Skrillex at Coachella, it went on to sell over 200,000 digital downloads.

"You can't help but get excited when you hear that song," smiles Fieldy. "That's how we knew we were on to something."

There was no question. KORN knew they needed to do an entire album following this muse. The band would record with dubstep DJs back in Davis's home studio in Bakersfield during inspired sessions. Vocals were actually tracked in the singer's home theater or in closets and hotels everywhere from Korea to Japan. The record came together at light speed. Before they knew it, the eleven songs comprising THE PATH OF TOTALITY were complete.

"It was a very different recording process," Fieldy adds. "In fact, it was the most easy and organized album that we've ever done. We got a bunch of different flavors from the DJs. Instead of picking up a guitar or bass and jamming out, we'd get inspired by these weird sounds and work around them. It's a new approach to an old formula."

Lyrically, Davis also broke ground. Known for his heart-wrenching introspective verbal exorcism, the singer turned to both the world around him and inside his own head for inspiration. "I came at the lyrics from a different direction," he goes on. "I wasn't writing about me on this record. I was writing about things I've witnessed and things I'm into. I'm looking at what goes on in my mind."

The album's second official single, "Narcissistic Cannibal" featuring Skrillex and Kill the Noise, is the perfect example. Davis delivers a haunting and theatrical refrain over synth swells as a glitch hop death march commences. Everything blossoms into one of the catchiest hooks of the band's career. "The key changes make it so unpredictable," Shaffer exclaims. "It's not how we would traditionally write, but it's still extremely heavy. That song is a good representation of this record as a whole."

Davis reveals, "It's about me watching people who are so narcissistic destroy themselves. They basically eat themselves alive because of their narcissism. That's the gist of the story."

He tells another poignant and powerful story on "Bleeding Out." After an elegantly evil piano intro, the song traverses a warped soundscape from producer Feed Me. The singer engages a philosophical discussion over more eerie seven-string alchemy from Shaffer.

Then there's "Chaos Lives in Everything," another salvo featuring Skrillex. The tune boasts a hushed bridge with Davis at a near whisper before a dubstep metal freak-out that'll ignite mosh pits everywhere. "It gets sadistic and my inner demons are speaking here. A lot of people get in a fight just to watch their significant other in pain. Then they fuck and makeup," Davis laughs. "Chaos does live in everything. Anything can be chaotic."

KORN harness that chaos better than ever before during the album's finale, "Way Too Far" featuring 12th Planet. "Way Too Far" spirals from a grinding visceral crunch into ethereal production that blasts off into space in one final sonic haze.

"It's the one song that's about me," Davis reveals. "Sometimes, I just take things way too far. The little death metal growl is like the voice in my head. If it's a small drama, I'll get upset and do things that make it worse. I think a lot of people relate to that."

Takin on a project of this magnitude that encompasses two genres is a monumental moment for the band. That's why the title proves so apropos. Davis actually asked Shaffer to come up with ideas for an album name. While on a flight to Asia, the guitarist watched a documentary about solar eclipses, and he came upon the phrase THE PATH OF TOTALITY. As soon as the plane landed, he shared it with Davis.

"I wanted to come up with a name that felt otherworldly," Shaffer explains. "A shadow is cast on the earth when a solar eclipse occurs. The moon has to be perfectly aligned with the sun to create this flawless shadow that completely covers the sun from the earth. Similarly, all of the producers and writers had to come together at the perfect time to cast these songs onto tape."

Davis continues, "Everything simply fit with this record, and we were able to achieve our goal. It's a rebirth."

Ultimately, KORN's rebirth starts at THE PATH OF TOTALITY. "I want people to experience something sonically that they never have when they listen to this record," Shaffer states.

Davis echoes that sentiment, "I want to trail-blaze. I want to change things. I want to do things we're not supposed to do. I want to create art that's different and not conform to what's going on. We didn't make a dubstep album. We made a KORN album."

ALL INDIA - Carried Happiness.

by: Kyle Bloser, Photos by Man Nguyen

All India is a great find for those who are looking to take an exotic trip without leaving the Pittsburgh area. The best part, other than it being way closer and easier to do than an actual trip, is that your taste buds will thank you! The food is made fresh from scratch every time it is ordered which allows for the highest quality possible and always guarantees the freshest of ingredients. The owners, Didar and his wife, have been in the business for over two decades, which allows them to have the expertise to give you the best experience possible which goes way beyond just the food. As soon as you walk in the front door you can tell you've made a good decision. The first thing that greets you at the door is the aroma of curry coupled with other recognizable spices that are known characteristics of Indian food. The other thing that greets you almost as fast as the aroma is the extremely friendly staff. They greet you with a smile and menus as soon as you walk in the door. The staff is very attentive and is always willing to help you choose from the numerous amounts of options on the menu. They are extremely knowledgeable about all of the dishes and can explain what every one of the dishes are, how they are prepared and which spices are used. At All India you can have anything prepared to your particular taste, from extremely mild to hot and spicy.

When you are seated and begin to look around, you will quickly notice the décor is very authentic, from the music and lighting right down to the water goblet. This authenticity continues with the food that is on the menu. There are so many options on the menu that you can literally find something for anyone. They have so many different styles of dishes with a wide array of ingredients. These range from your normal options such as chicken, beef, lamb, and seafood to their more traditional Indian ingredients that are harder to find, like goat, for example. All of these meats are served in numerous amounts of dishes such as curries and tandoori sauces. All of the presentations are beautiful and make the dishes look almost too beautiful to eat, but as soon as you do take a bite you won't be able to stop, and it'll keep you wanting more. All India is a BYOB restaurant, which is nice if you want to drink what you want rather than have to choose from sometimes limited bar options. What makes it even better is that there is no cork charge to bring your own alcohol, which is common in many BYOB places. If you bring beer, they even offer to refrigerate your extra bottles so that it stays cold and will bring new bottles back to your table when desired.

All of the food that we tasted was served with enormous portions and was amazing.

Owners Didar Singh and Mandit Kaur

Many of the dishes are unique to the restaurant, and some of them were the chef's special recipes. The first thing that we tried was the chips and three dipping sauces. The first sauce was a mint cilantro dip and was very refreshing and flavorful. The second sauce was an onion sauce that had tomatoes and herbs in it and was extremely refreshing; it was almost like their version of a salsa, just in an Indian style. The third sauce was a tamarind sauce, which was sweet and very intensely flavored but extremely good. Actually, this sauce would be good on anything. One of the drinks that I tried was a Mango Milkshake. It was fantastically refreshing and very tasty; it would pair well with anything on the menu.

For the first course of food we were served the All India Platter, ($10) which was a platter of a little bit of each of the most popular appetizers in a sampler platter. It included: Chicken Tikka, Lamb Kabab, Salmon Kabab, Samosa, and Vegetable Pakaora. The Chicken Tikka was one of the most tender chicken I've ever had ever, and the seasoning was to die for. The Lamb was the most flavorful and tender meat that I've ever had; it melted in your mouth. I could eat that as an entrée all day and be completely happy. The Samosa is just curried goodness in a pocket of dough. The flavors of this were intense. It made your taste buds go all over the place, but overall it is fantastic. All this goodness, and that was just the appetizer. After this I couldn't wait for the main courses.

The four main courses we tried were all unbelievable and all very unique in their own way. Some of them are exclusive and only available at All India because they are Didar's own special original recipes. The first dish that I reached for was two things that I absolutely love that I had never seen put together before: Lobster Tandoori ($19). The Lobster Tandoori was sweet and savory from the sauce; the two are almost made to be put together, it was phenomenal. The next thing I tried was called Chicken Sangrilla Biryani ($12) (which is only described as the "Chef's secret recipe)," in which he doesn't disappoint. This is pulled chicken with a fried egg on top and some sort of sauce. It was served over jasmine rice that pairs perfectly with the bold flavors in the chef's secret sauce. We also sampled Chicken Hut-K Chicken ($10,) which was a flavorful spicy chicken that was excellent and a little on the hot side, and I enjoyed every bite. Our final entrée of the evening was the Lamb Mango Curry ($11), which was, hands down, the best curry I've ever had. The sweetness of the sauce and the combination of mangos mixed with the richness of the sauce made for the perfect pairing. The lamb was fork tender and melted in your mouth, which made it meld so well with the creamy curry tomato gravy sauce. This dish was perfect over jasmine rice.

The dessert options all sounded amazing. After considerable contemplating, I finally decided to try the Tuti Fruity Salad ($4) and the Kheer Mango Float ($4), both of which were extremely rich and refreshing. The Kheer Mango Float was a rice pudding done in a very unique way, which I loved, and the other was a fruit salad nicely tossed in a creamy sauce, which was absolutely refreshing and a perfect ending to a fabulous meal. We topped off our night with a cup of the Masala Chai ($3) tea spiced with cinnamon, cloves, cardamom, milk and sugar and Madras Coffee ($3) free brewed Indian-style coffee with sweet milk. The Chai was one of the best Chai teas I've ever had.

If you can't decide what to order from the menu one of the best options in All India is their enormous buffet. The buffet is an amazing bargain too: just $6 for lunch and $10 for dinner. The buffet has a good sampling of the dishes that are offered on the menu. This gives you the option of trying something new and different, and trust me, there is definitely something for everyone on this buffet. After eating at All India you will want to come back often as there is always some new dish waiting to tantalize your taste buds. Overall the food is totally amazing, flavorful and delicious. Plus, the service is great, and the owner/chef is always smiling and happy to see you. All India is very welcoming, the interior is very comfortable and inviting, the food is excellent, their portions are large and very reasonably priced. Overall All India is a new favorite of mine. If you want to try something new I highly recommend giving them a try. Hope to see you there!

Green Flash Brewing

by Sean Creevey

Arriving in the craft beer scene just over a decade ago in San Diego, Green Flash Brewing Company has already left a memorable mark. In 2002 two pub owners, Mike and Lisa Hinkley, decided they wanted to take their love for beer to the next level and opened Green Flash. It wasn't until their brewmaster, Chuck Silva, got there in 2005 that things really started to get interesting. Now they're creating brews that never before existed, facilitating the creation of new categories and the blurring the lines of old. They have set sail for the new world of craft beer, and they're not looking back. With Chuck at the helm, Green Flash has come a long way, and the voyage just keeps getting better. The current part of this voyage is so spectacular that Green Flash has named it the Hop Odyssey, and it's lasting all year! They've made some friends along the way as well, concocting collaboration brews with Stone Brewing Company and Pizza Port (a brew pub in California) called Highway 78 Scotch Ale, and with St-Feuillien brewery in Belgium to craft their Friendship Brew, a black saison. These two collaborations just touch the surface of the distinctive style that is Green Flash. Stretching to fit their brews into ready-made definitions, they've won a plethora of awards, and if history repeats itself, their future looks awfully tasty.

The Hop Odyssey is homage to the complicated bitter climber we all know and love: hops. To complete this homage Green Flash is releasing a new hop centric every other month; thus, six new brews will be released for a limited amount of time. These six beers will be like nothing you've ever tasted before, from black to pale and floral to grapefruit, they're breaking ground. The brews are as follows, reaching back to this past February: Black IPA with Warrior, Citra and Cascade hops at 7.2% ABV and 85 IBUs; in April, the Imperial Red Rye with Columbus and Mosaic hops at 8.5% ABV and 80 IBUs; in June there's the Citra Session IPA with Citra hops and an ABV of 4.5% and 45 IBUs; in August the Symposium IPA using Simcoe, Tomahawk, Amarilla, Cascade, and Centennial hops and coming in at 7% ABV and 75 IBUs; October has the Cedar Plank Pale using Warrior, El Dorado and Cascade hops at 6.3% ABV and 45 IBUs; and finally for December and January we have the Double Columbus IPA with generous amounts of Columbus hops coming in at hefty 8.8%ABV and 98 IBUs. If you've ever had a craving to experience a wide range of hop flavors, now is the time, but take note: they're only available in draft form, so check out your local watering hole to enjoy. Luckily for us over here on the east coast, Green Flash is expanding: they're moving in to a second location in Virginia Beach. Soon we will be flooded with the delicious libations, 100,000 barrels worth, filling all the shelves of the stores near you. Another plus of the Virginia Beach location is the closer proximity. In case you couldn't make the trek across the country, Virginia Beach is only a seven- hour drive. The new location will house a tasting room, space for private events and a vast outdoor beer garden and is expected to be open sometime in 2015.

The following is only a sampling of the abundance of brews Green Flash produces,

West Coast IPA

Bringing home the cake with 9 different awards and accolades, the West Coast IPA is not only their most popular but a defining brew for IPAs in the west coast style. A unique layering process is employed for this beer (and most of their IPAs) to garner a complex range of hop flavors. In this we have the Simcoe, Columbus and Centennial hops, three classic hops that when combined with the power of Green Flash, evokes a feeling of utter contentment. Fruity, citrusy, piney, and so, so smooth, the West Coast IPA draws you in with the first sip and yearning for more when that last one's gone. Standing at 7.3% ABV and 95 IBUs, drink slowly so you don't miss anything.

Barleywine Style Ale

Arriving on the scene in 2004, this barleywine is one for the ages; you'll need to buy two, one for now and one to age until you can't wait any longer. Taking tips from the old-world styles of barleywine, Green Flash slow boils for four hours to get the sugars as deep and caramelly as possible. As it ages, the aggressive hoppiness turns into a smooth and complicated brew best sipped slowly. Weighing in a hefty 10.9% ABV, it's best enjoyed to help keep warm on a cool Pittsburgh spring evening, or stash it away and let it give you a nice winter blanket when the winter comes back around.

Le Freak

Words cannot sufficiently describe this brew. Here we have the epitome of Green Flash, hoppy, Belgium, and trailblazing. What Le Freak consists of is an American Imperial IPA and a Belgium Trippel mixed together to form something spectacular. The international coupling has led to a brew unlike any other; dry-hopped and bottle-conditioned, this ale has the best of both worlds. From bitter to malty and everything in between, Le Freak should be drunk any time and at 9.2% ABV a couple of them will have you feeling le freaky.

Saison Diego

Can you guess where the name came from? Technically, a saison is a farmhouse ale, but Green Flash likes to call it their beach house ale—it's more appropriate. With Saaz hops, orange zest, ginger and grains of paradise, this brew will be the perfect summer libation: crisp, zesty and at 5% ABV, totally ready for a summer session. Expect to see it hit shelves come summer time when you can start your summer of saison.

Just so you can mark your calendars now, get ready for what are sure to be amazing brews in the future:

Green Bullet will be released in the fall of this year, and get ready to try some New Zealand hops. Two types of hops, Green Bullet and Pacific Gem, will be the stars, working together to produce a triple IPA that's very well-rounded for a brew of such strength (10.1% ABV and over 100 IBUs!). With soft pine, citrus and notes of mango and pineapple, Green Bullet will be the perfect brew to reign in the fall while reminiscing of those summer nights.

Not even a month ago, Green Flash put their Silva Stout into some whiskey barrels, and there it will stay for 18 months. That's right, 18 months, and with that amount of time there's no doubt in my mind that come fall of 2014 a very, very delicious Green Flash brew will be on the market. It will be limited and selective, so check out their website at <http://www.greenflashbrew.com/> to stay up to date about where and when you can experience the experience.

A promotional poster for Green Flash's 'HOP ODYSSEY 2013'. The poster features a blue background with a white sunburst logo. At the top, it says 'EMBARK on our HOP ODYSSEY 2013'. Below this, it says 'INVITE YOUR TASTEBUDS TO SET SAIL ON SIX HOPPY ADVENTURES'. The poster lists six beers with their respective hop varieties and release dates: Black IPA (Citra and Cascade hops, February-March), Imperial Red Rye (Columbus and Mosaic hops, April-May), Citra Session IPA (Citra hops, June-July), Symposium IPA (Symphony, Columbus, and Centennial hops, August-September), Cedar Plank Pale (Columbus and Cascade hops, October-November), and Double Columbus IPA (Columbus hops, December-January). The poster also includes the text 'Adventurously hoppy', '6 BEERS in 12 MONTHS', and 'New craft on draft'. At the bottom, it says 'GREENFLASHBREW.COM/HOODESSY' and 'TASTE IT ONCE. REMEMBER IT FOREVER.' with the Green Flash logo.

Full Pint Brewing

by Sean Creevey
Photos by Kimberly Cook

In the unassuming town of North Versailles sits a friendly little brewery that doesn't get the recognition it deserves. Don't let the façade of the building fool you; there's more to Full Pint than their hidden location, once inside you will discover a brewery that brews world class beers. The brew master's are down to earth people, with a good sense of humor and an even better taste in beer. To prepare for this article, I spent an afternoon at the brewery surveying the facility, talking to locals and tasting the local fair. And by surveying, talking and tasting I really mean walking around talking to Sean Hallisey (brewer and part owner) while drinking beer. Even though I technically went there for work, it was a fantastic afternoon, and I already can't wait to go back.

Nestled up a hidden road in an industrial park is a prototypical hidden gem in the rough. Established only three years ago in 2010, Full Pint is still in the growing stage, but they're growing fast. Contrary to popular belief they actually don't brew out of their basement. In fact, they have a peak output of 8,000 barrels a year and distribute to Pennsylvania, Ohio and Florida. Why Florida, you ask? Well to be frank, they're just that good, and Florida was lucky enough to figure that out before all the other states between here and there. And they pay more, what's your excuse? As with any business, they're always looking for ways to grow and improve in the most uniquely fashionable way possible.

One of their main goals for the brewery in the future is to enhance the pub side of the business. What they currently have is not too shabby as is; they have the standard brew pub fair of their beers on tap. Now you might be thinking, "what's so special about that?" Well, not only do they do the standard of sixers, growlers, cases, kegs, etc., but they have all of their beers on tap, and I'm not just saying the ones you can get in your local retailer, but special in-house only brews. So for those of you who want to try something new and interesting that you can't get anywhere else you must visit the brewery. They colloquially refer to these brews as "Nerds Reserve," and they're each crafted by a single brewer on a rotating schedule. Some of these brews include Gus, an IPA, an elderflower saison, and a weizenbock.

But wait, there's more: for your stomach-filling needs they also make pizzas to order so you can stay longer and enjoy more. Is there really a better combination? There might be, and it's happening soon. They're still ironing out the details, but expect to see some meat and cheese platters from Wild Purveyors that will have you thinking you're in the original Versailles. With an amazing relationship between Wild Purveyors and Full Pint (meat, cheese and beer) something unique will certainly come from this; meat beer? Cheese beer? These guys just may have enough cahones to pull off a prosciutto IPA...keep your fingers crossed. Adding to the authentic feel of the pub side of Full Pint is the handmade bar. The bar is a beautiful piece of work of cherry, handcrafted, and complete with malt right in the top of the bar. Jake's (another brewer/owner) father was the mastermind behind the creation; you might recognize him from the Hobnobber label.

Now what you all came here for, the liquid gold, the social lubricant, the brew. I'm only going to cover a sampling since, with over ten brews, you might get a contact inebriation just from reading about them. Strap yourself in, from the Whiskey Rebellion to Zeus, and 4-10% ABV this'll be the ride of your life.

The Beers...

All In Amber

This is the brew that started it all. The name isn't just a name but also representative of what the fellas at Full Pint did to start it all: a few guys pooling their life savings and going all in to do what they love. This amber ale is a favorite among the locals in the pub, a smooth, satisfying beer to satiate that five o'clock thirst. 25 IBUs and 5.8% ABV.

White Lightning

One of their most popular brews and for a reason: wheat, sweet and a little spicy, this brew coats your pallet like a warm bath. No, not warm and soapy, but relaxing, calming, and the perfect thing after some physical labor. And for further enjoyment take note of the label, there's an Easter egg, an homage, if you will, to their astrological cousin. Hint: Zeus doesn't particularly enjoy this other brew... 18 IBUs and 5.5% ABV.

Chinookie

A playful brew with a playful name, loaded with Chinook hops, four times during the brewing process and then dry hopped some more. Even though there's Magnum, Warrior, and Centennial as well, Chinook is what makes this IPA so special. At 103.1 IBUs you will be happily surprised at how drinkable it is. So chin up with someone close and enjoy some 'nookie. 7.2% ABV.

Perc E Bust

A robust coffee porter brewed with Percolated Guatemalan coffee from the Commonplace Coffee Company in Squirrel Hill. I'll just let you figure out the humor in this name (check out the label). This robust porter is made with ten different types of malts that creates a pallet so complementary to the coffee that you can't help but think that it was meant to be. 52 IBUs and 5.8% ABV.

Hobnobber

A personal favorite of mine, the name, the label and of course, the flavor. In case you're like me and never heard of the word hobnob, you will surely use it now. Hobnob: v. 1. To associate with on friendly terms. 2. To drink socially. A session IPA that keeps you coming back for more, perfect for your inner hobnob. It pours a hazy golden yellow and smells like a venerable IPA, hoppy, but laid back enough to enjoy time and time again. At only 4% ABV that means only 129 Calories, so have yourself a couple and save yourself from another lap around the block. So pick up a few Hobnobbers and hobnob the night away! 50 IBUs.

Rye Rebellion

Rye, rye, and some more rye is what makes this imperial rye stout so special. In honor of those brave souls who stood up to the man, Rye Rebellion is aged in rye whiskey barrels from Wiggle Whiskey in the Strip District. In case the rye flavor didn't come through enough from the aging process Full Pint used four different types of rye malt: rye, crystal rye, flaked rye and, chocolate rye. Now don't be scared, you don't have to be able to enjoy a glass of rye whiskey to handle this brew, but it does taste like rye. With a little alcohol in the nose and whole lotta rye in the mouth, Rye Rebellion is remarkably smooth for being 11% ABV. That being said, take it slow with this one; you don't want the brew you rebel on you. 55 IBUs.

Full Pint is distributed by Wilson-McGinley Co Beer Distributors in Pittsburgh so if your favorite bar doesn't have it, be sure and tell them to order it for you. You can visit the Full Pint pub - Daily Mon-Wed 5-9, Thur-Fri 5-11, Sat 12-11. Hours are subject to change if pub is empty after 9. Located in North Versailles - at 1963 Lincoln Highway, 15137 - visit them on the web at www.fullpintbrewing.com or call them up if you get lost at: 412-467-6414.

Jeff Walewski – Owner of Sharp Edge Restaurants

Beer Paradise, Belgian

Where else can you experience medieval history, a place that has had a few world wars fought on their land, a country the size of Maryland but has over 100 Michelin restaurants, the best chocolate in the world and the best beer? Belgium of course! What you can't believe in your first visit to this great country is the amount restaurants, bars and breweries scattered across the country side. With every turn around the block you will find world renowned selections of a diverse selection of their beers, not to mention the restaurants.

Depending on which part of the country you go to, you will find individual styles of beer. The world famous lambic country is where you can find beer brewed like no other in the world. Breweries add yeast to ferment their beer, but in the lambic region (southwest of Brussels) the fermentation vessels are open to the outside air and magically air borne yeast lands in the vessels, called spontaneous fermentation, cooking with. In the northwest you will find the unique sour beers. These beers are usually finished in wooden casks, this allows wild yeast to be introduced into the beer to impart the wood flavor along with the sourness, better well known examples are Rodenbach, Petrus Oud Brune and Goudenband. There are Belgian beers like "Champagne" beers (Deus and Grottenbier), that use the champagne yeast strain to give beer those tiny bubbles like the French champagne. Dubbel style beers (Maredsous 8 and Bornem), usually around 8% in alcohol, the beer recipes are from the monasteries but now made in family brewed breweries and royalties paid back to the monasteries. Wit Bier which is a style of the German Hefe-Weiss, (Wittekerke, Hoegaarden) Belgians brew this wheat beer with coriander and orange peel. Lately the Belgian breweries have been adding fruit for a refreshing flavor. My favorite style is the Triple beers (Westmalle Triple and Gulden Draak, voted best tasting beer in the world in 1998), these beers are usually 10% on up, a strong pale ale. If you are ever interested in having a beer tour in Belgium, one of the best tours that I have been on is the "Fun & Beer Tour", in a weeks time you will visit at least 6 breweries and some of the best cooking from beer restaurants that you will ever have in Europe (www.globalbeer.com). Or email me and I can suggest a personal private tour director out of Bruges that will take you to a few amazing places. If you love beer and great food, a visit to Belgium must be on your bucket list!

Brooklyn Brewing

by Kyle Bloser

Brooklyn Brewery has a cool history of how it became what it is today. Steve Hindy, who was a correspondent and an avid home brewer, who had just moved back to the states and settled in Brooklyn, originally started it in 1984. Later that year with his downstairs neighbor, Tom Potter, they founded the Brooklyn Brewery. They founded the brewery in hopes of continuing the great heritage in the Brooklyn area in producing beers before prohibition and before the invasion of the American adjunct lager. The first beer they brewed was their signature Brooklyn Lager which was the only beer they produced for the first few years of production. After having success and deciding to open their own brewery, they hired renowned brew master Garrett Oliver in 1994, who then developed many of the signature beers the company is known for today. The brewery is currently undergoing a major expansion project that will increase beer production and allow for more special edition beers to be brewed. 2013 is also the 25th anniversary of the brewery, which they will be releasing a few limited edition brews to commemorate their Silver Anniversary.

The first beer to be discussed is the Brooklyn Brown Ale, which is a hybrid English ale that combines characteristics of both northern and southern style English ales to create a unique tour of the English Isle. In terms of flavor it is very unique; it isn't just your typical English Ale but leaves you definitely wanting more. It is very smooth and drinkable for a darker beer, which normally tend to be on the heavier side. The thing that makes it unique is the hoppiness that is added due to the late hopping which is their own addition to the traditionally non-hoppy brown ale.

The next beer is the East India Pale Ale. IPA's were originally brewed so a beer could survive a long boat ride. The name comes from where most of those ship voyages were heading, the East Indies. IPA's are strongly hopped with a bitter note, very refreshing on a hot day. This IPA has many spices in it, such as lemongrass, pine and citrus. The combinations of all of these flavors create a unique IPA that is very good and allows you appreciate the beer for and all of the ingredients that are added to the beer.

Brooklyn Lager is their first original beer that the company was founded on. It is a Vienna style lager that is a very drinkable and smooth European style lager. This lager is dry hopped while cold which gives it a rich and extremely flavorful finish that makes it easy to pair with any food. It's a great summer beer that is crisp and refreshing, yet full bodied in its own way.

The Local #1 and Local #2 are very special and unique beers all the way from the ingredients used to brew them to the way they are fermented. They use fresh, many local, ingredients to add an almost local flavor for lack of a better word to the two beers. The #2 uses honey from a local farm that give it the flavor of the area. Another local addition is the light and dark raw sugars that are used in the fermentation process to give sugars to the yeast. This is an important step that adds to the fermentation of the beer that Brooklyn Brewing uses their own unique yeast chain in. One of the most unique things about the two are the way that they are both bottle and re-fermented which is a very rare thing today. This process is very old school and has almost been extinct except for a few breweries around the world that keep the tradition alive. Local #1 is a lighter ale where #2 is a little bit darker and richer, both are amazing and play off of each other allowing them to be an appropriate beer to enjoy with any meal.

Sorachi Ace is a very special beer in that Brooklyn Brewing is the only brewery to make it. What makes it unique is that sorachi ace are actually a type of hops. These hops were invented in Japan by a local brewery there in the late 1980's. The beer itself is a saison, which is an unfiltered farmhouse ale that makes it a perfect beer for the summer months. The beer originally was only released as a seasonal beer, that was part of the brewmaster's reserve series, but it was so popular they decided to make it all year long. They dry hop the beer with the unique hops that allow it to have an even stronger flavor of the unique hops that gives the beer its name.

The brewery has many other beers that are only available in the Brooklyn area and are part of the Brewmasters Reserve series that are quite good. The brewery has successfully brought back that heritage of making great beer in the Brooklyn area that was started by the immigrants throughout history. They will also continue to create new beers that play off of their great heritage and 25 years of success that has come with their dream that started with just two friends making a home brew.

Amber

by: Andrew Schroeder

Those who talk about beer identify one basic distinction between American and European brews. Major American macrobrews like Budweiser and Coors are popular with beer fans for their drinkability; these brewers pride themselves in creating beer that has a pleasant taste but also has drinkability. One need only remember the early-2000s marketing campaign for Miller Lite in which beer fans debate (often violently) over the beer's superior characteristic: that it tastes great or that it's less filling than other beers.

On the other hand, European beers – and European-style American craft beers – fill you up faster but provide a stronger and more distinct flavor than their macrobrew counterparts. This difference between American-style and European-style beers can be pretty obvious: look at a glass of Bud Light next to a glass of Guinness; you can guess which is more “drinkable.”

Most of Pittsburgh Brewing Company's Iron City label matches the American-style, and does it well. The label's flagship beers, Iron City and IC Light, are city staples, found in bars and distributors throughout Pittsburgh and beyond. It's as Pittsburgh as the Steelers and steep hills.

But Pittsburgh's pub-goers may have noticed more developments in the Iron City brand over the past few years – one of which being Iron City Amber, the subject of this week's feature. Released in November 2011, coinciding with the brewery's 150th anniversary, Iron City Amber adds a distinctly European flavor to the time-tested formula of Iron City beer without weakening the latter.

This amber lager, make no mistake, is still American-style. The drinkability is still there, as any fan of Iron City's beer would be right to expect. However, this particular brew has more flavor and a more robust taste than its lighter counterparts. The taste is slightly but pleasurable added bitterness than the average American macrobrew, and it has an appealing deep copper color to it.

I had the pleasure of speaking with Pittsburgh Brewing Company president and CEO Ed Lozano, who was quick to defer credit for the brew to the brewmaster, Mike Carota. Carota is, according to Lozano, one

IRON CITY

Amber

WHEN YOU KNOW BETTER, YOU DRINK BETTER.

Presenting the Brewmaster's choice. Iron City Amber is a specialty blend of roasted two-row malts, caramelized barley and aromatic European and American Cascade hops. These premium ingredients give Amber its beautiful copper color, mild hoppy aroma and a smooth, malty flavor with just a hint of bitterness.

of the finest brewmasters in the country, and his resume supports that argument: he's managed recipes and formulas for 40 years, at breweries across the country, and even has experience brewing teas, sodas, and juice. Safe to say, the man knows his brews, and the taste of Iron City Amber corroborates us.

Iron City Amber is made with higher quality ingredients than your average American lager. Starting with caramelized malted barley, the brew features a unique blend of cascade hops – a staple in American breweries – and hops from Germany and the Czech Republic. The integration of these European hops gives the beer its stronger flavor, distinguishing it from beers that use solely American hops. It's a new flavor with a familiar feel, that same old drinkability. Any fans of Iron City's product line who don't try Iron City Amber would be missing out.

Iron City Amber is just one of a list of new developments that have come to the Iron City brand in recent years. IC Light Mango (and its comic-style billboards) made its appearance in Pittsburgh in 2011 as well, and has been a huge hit. The brewery is launching IC Light Berry in May as well, giving drinkers a light, fruity beer to enjoy with the warm weather. And Lozano clued me in that the Pittsburgh Brewing Company was also making preparations for two more beers that may possibly see shelves and bars this year: a seasonal pumpkin beer, tentatively to be released in the fall, and a possible pale ale or IPA.

The Iron City brand is expanding its taste frontiers, adding more and more to its repertoire. Iron City Amber is a strong representative of that strategy: taking the same drinkable American style that got Iron City into bars and hearts across Pennsylvania, and adding to it the deeper levels of flavor found in European brews, a style becoming more and more popular in the states. Iron City Amber is a crossroads between American and European styles, right here in our very own Pittsburgh.

Fuller's, Fruti and Hacker-Pschorr Brews

by Dale Zupansky

Fuller, Smith & Turner – a.k.a. Fuller's Beer has been brewed on Fuller's Chiswick site for over 350 years -- as far back as the era of Oliver Cromwell. From the original brewery in the gardens of Bedford House on Chiswick Mall, the business expanded and thrived until the early part of the nineteenth century. In 1829, owners Douglas and Henry Thompson and Phillip Wood welcomed a new partner, John Fuller. The partnership dissolved in 1841, leaving Fuller's son, John Bird Fuller, alone to run the large enterprise. In 1845, Fuller was joined by Henry Smith from the Romford Brewery of Ind & Smith and his brother-in-law, head brewer John Turner, thereby forming Fuller Smith & Turner, as it is still known today. Based at the historic Griffin Brewery in Chiswick, London, between the serenity of the Thames River and the hustle and bustle of the Hogarth Roundabout, Fuller's has been brewing quality beers and running excellent pubs since 1845. From its flagship London Pride to the exclusive Vintage Ale, they are crafted with pride and passion.

London Pride

London Pride, Fuller's flagship beer, was crowned the Supreme Champion at the 2000 International Beer and Cider competition. London Pride was named Champion Best Bitter at the CAMRA Great British Beer Festival in 1995, and in 1979 when it also achieved the ultimate accolade of Beer of the Year. London Pride is a smooth and astonishingly complex beer with a distinctive malty base complemented by a rich balance of well-developed hop flavors from the Target, Challenger and Northdown varieties. It is 4.7% ABV.

ESB

Fuller's is the father of the ESB style, and first introduced it as a winter brew in 1971. The potential of the beer was soon realized, and Fuller's began producing it year-round. ESB's reputation as the best British beer around can be credited to the multiple CAMRA awards (Campaign for Real Ales) and World Championships that it has won. Since it was created, many breweries have tried to imitate the Fuller's ESB, and the style has become very popular; however, the Fuller's ESB is unrivaled in flavor and balance. A robust 5.9% alcohol by volume, it is brewed from Pale Ale and Crystal malts and from Target, Challenger, Northdown and Goldings hops. Andrew Jefford, the respected U.K. drinks critic, sums up ESB's flavor this way: "An ample, grainy-nutty aroma and a broad, authoritative flavour, with lashings of dry marmalade-like bitters." Renowned beer connoisseur Roger Protz describes "... an enormous attack of rich malt, tangy fruit and spicy hops in the mouth, with a profound Goldings peppery note in the long finish and hints of orange, lemon and gooseberry fruit."

Fuller's London Porter

Fuller's London Porter is ranked the number one tasting Porter in the world on ratebeer.com. The origins of Porter date back to London in the early nineteenth century when it was popular to mix two or three beers – usually an old, well-vatted or "stale" brown ale – with a new brown ale and a pale ale. It was time-consuming for the pub owner to pull from three casks for one pint, so brewers in London tested and produced a new beer, known as "Entire," to match the tastes of such mixtures. Using high roasted malts, Entire was dark, cloudy and hoppy. It was also easily produced in bulk and ideally suited to the soft well water of London. Very quickly, it became popular among the porters working in Billingsgate and Smithfield markets. Gradually, the beer took on the name Porter in recognition of its greatest devotees. Fuller's London

Porter captures the flavors of the original style perfectly, although you won't find a cloudy pint these days! Smooth, rich, and strong (5.4% alcohol by volume), London Porter is brewed from a blend of brown, crystal and chocolate malts for a creamy delivery balanced by traditional Fuggles hops. Definitely worth a sip if you fancy something stronger and darker than coffee!

Organic Honey Dew

Organic Honey Dew is the U.K.'s best-selling organic beer. Light and golden with a zesty edge and a bittersweet flavor, Honey Dew is a naturally palatable brew that is Soil Association approved at 100% organic. Served chilled, Organic Honey Dew offers both refreshment and an unbeatable taste. The real organic honey in the brew gives a gentle sweetness that appeals to a wide range of people, even those who perhaps wouldn't usually drink beer, making it a very popular choice. Brewed using the finest organic honey and English malts and hops, The Organic Honey Dew is a wonderfully balanced, zesty beer with a hint of sweetness. For an ultra-refreshing drink, try Honey Dew poured over ice with a wedge of lime; the lime enhances the natural zesty flavors in the beer, creating a delicious summer drink. The Organic Honey Dew is brewed to 5.0% ABV.

Bengal Lancer IPA

India Pale Ale is an historic style of English beer that traditionally was always strong and well hopped. It was first brewed in the 19th Century to refresh the troops in India during the time of the British Empire, perhaps the most famous of these troops being the Bengal Lancers, Cavalry regiments whose dashing exploits have passed into folklore. Bengal Lancer is the brand new, classic India Pale Ale from Fuller's. Brewed to 5.3% ABV and bottle conditioned, this ale has been inspired by the history and character of this traditional style of beer. Pale in color and full-bodied, with a distinctive hoppiness that marks it out as a true India Pale Ale, Bengal Lancer IPA is very well balanced, with just the right amount of mouth feel to make this a perfect beer to go with spicy and barbecue foods. Without the overpowering hop feel that you would find in most American IPAs, Bengal Lancer can be enjoyed year-round and by everyone.

1845 Celebration Ale is a true landmark in British beer history. To commemorate the company's 150th anniversary, Fuller's commissioned a special brew to celebrate the milestone, and 1845 Celebration Ale was the result. A more auspicious beginning the brew could not have had: the inaugural beer's hops were added to the brewing vat by none other than Prince Charles, Prince of Wales, during a royal visit to Fuller's! 1845 is bottle conditioned, which means that it contains a live strain of yeast and therefore continues to develop its flavors as it ages for up to three years. Enjoy a pint or two today, and then save some to enjoy from time to time over the next few years to watch as the flavors continually develop. It is 6.3% alcohol by volume.

Vintage Ale

Vintage Ale is perfect for those who appreciate the finer things in life. Each year a limited amount of Vintage Ale is brewed, using only the best hops and barley from England. The use of these ultra-premium ingredients, combined with the brewing expertise of Fuller's, results in the "best beer to have ever come from U.K. soil" as declared by RateBeer.com. Since each batch is unique to the specific hops and barley chosen, each Vintage contains slightly different flavors. This beer is bottle conditioned so that its flavors continue to develop for up to seven years, reaching the peak of its flavor between three to four years. First brewed in 1997, Fuller's Vintage Ale embodies why Fuller's is often regarded as the benchmark in British Ales. We recommend that Vintage Ale be consumed at cellar temperature, or approximately 52°F. Pour it slowly into a Cognac balloon and allow the beer to breathe. Then sip it on its own or with a fine cheese and feel the warmth of the season come upon you.

Früli

One of the most unique beers you will find, Früli is a Belgian White (wheat beer) with 30% real strawberry juice added. Far easier to drink than Lambics (which tend to be more of a sipping drink), Früli can be enjoyed all summer long in the heat, and is a perfect holiday drink for when the weather turns colder. Fruit beer is now becoming established as a distinct category alongside other established beer types such as pale ales, stouts, wheat beers, blond ales and lagers. Früli is a high quality premium beer brewed in the 300 year old Huyghe Brewery, a craft brewery in Belgium. Früli is an excellent accompaniment to spicy Asian foods, goes very well with desserts, and can also be used as an ingredient in sorbets and sauces. We also enjoy mixing Früli with other beers and liquors to create unique combinations and cocktails – try mixing with a chocolate porter for a “Chocolate-covered Strawberry”! At 4.1% ABV, Früli is a very session-able beer that both men and women will enjoy.

Hacker-Pschorr

The “Münchner Brauhaus” on the corner of Sendlinger and Hackerstreet is mentioned 1417 (what is this, a year, a place?) as the first place where Hacker beer is brewed. Today we find the “Alte Hackerhaus” (old Hacker house) on the place where the beer was once brewed. Peter Paul Hacker takes over the Hacker brewery from his father Simon Hacker, who has been leading the company since 1738. In 1793, the 23-year-old farmer son Joseph Pschorr, who has been working as a “brew laborer,” marries Therese Hacker, the daughter of his “brew master” (the owner of the brewery) and buys the brewery from his father-in-law. In the following 15 years, the small Hacker Brewery becomes Munich’s top brewery among the 50 then existing Munich breweries due to the hard work and skill of Joseph Pschorr.

Hacker-Pschorr Weisse

Hacker-Pschorr Weisse is the authentic Bavarian wheat beer catering to consumers who know beer and appreciate the historic brand’s unique and complex flavor. It is a centuries-old German wheat beer from Bavaria that offers a refreshing taste. Wheat beer was originated in the German state of Bavaria in the 15th century. In Germany, it is typically called Weisse beer, meaning white or Weizen, meaning wheat. In Bavaria, Germany wheat beers represent 19.4% of the beer category. What makes the beer distinct is the use of 60% malted wheat and 40% malted barley in the brewing process. Unlike lager, wheat beer is top-fermented at higher temperatures. The top-fermentation and wheat produce hints of clove, giving Hacker-Pschorr Weisse a distinct flavor. Hacker-Pschorr Weisse has a cloudy appearance, characteristic of wheat beer. The cloudy appearance is due to yeast that is retained in the beer. A centrifuge process is used with traditional wheat beers to retain the yeast instead of the typical filtering process used with beers that are clear in appearance. The result is a taste that is authentic and perfect all year-round.

Hacker-Pschorr Munich Gold

Hacker-Pschorr Munich Gold was the first light-beer brewed in Munich in 1893. In Germany, there are provinces or states like in the most countries of the world. Munich is the capital city of the province of Bavaria, which is sometimes called “The Cradle of the Art of Brewing.” In Bavaria, where beer is an art form to some and a religion to the rest, Hacker-Pschorr Munich Gold is recognized as the benchmark of the lager style. The Hacker-Pschorr Brewery is known as Bavaria’s Heaven – “Himmel der Bayern.” Hacker-Pschorr’s Munich Gold represents the real thing from one of the oldest breweries in Munich. Germany is a hotbed of the brewing industry worldwide to this day, with just over 1,200 breweries in Germany, and 800 in Bavaria alone, more than any other country in the world.

Hacker-Pschorr Weisse Dark

The dark style of Weisse beer is produced with 60 percent light-colored malted wheat and 40 percent dark and light colored malted barley. This provides the beer with a deeper amber color than regular Weisse beers and a more robust and fuller flavor. This beer can tame the spiciest items on the menu while it maintains the characteristic refreshment of wheat beer.

Hacker-Pschorr Original Oktoberfest

When Ludwig I, the Crown Prince of Bavaria, was to celebrate his wedding in Munich in 1810, he decided it was an occasion for all of Bavaria to celebrate. He commissioned Josef Pschorr, then the brewmaster of the Hacker-Pschorr brewery, among other Munich brewers, to develop special brews to commemorate the occasion. The beer was so good that the party lasted for days, and Oktoberfest beer was born. Subsequent annual celebrations evolved into the city of Munich’s world-famous Oktoberfest, which is attended by over six million people each year, who in 2003 consumed over six million liters of beer. By Munich law, only the six breweries within the city limits of Munich are invited to serve their beer at Oktoberfest. Hacker-Pschorr is one of the six, as is its sister brand, Paulaner. Today’s event is held on land donated by Mr. Pschorr! Today’s Original Oktoberfest Märzen beer is still brewed in the same old tradition. The Oktoberfest brew is 100 percent all natural and brewed with pure spring water. It is brewed with Hacker-Pschorr’s centuries-old, exclusive yeast strain, Hallertau hops and dark- and light-colored malt from two-row Bavarian summer barley. The result is a beer that is full-bodied and flavorful with a rich creamy head.

Vecenies Distributing is the proud distributor of Hacker-Pschorr, Fuller’s, and Früli beers in the Pittsburgh area. So if you would like to try any of these tasty beers and are having trouble finding them, just simply ask your local beer store to order from Vecenies.

solo career, releasing his self-titled debut in 2011. The proceeds of Dunn's concert will go to local charities.

Finally, the anniversary concert series will conclude on August 17 with one of the greatest comedians of the 20th and 21st centuries, Bill Cosby. Most remember Cosby fondly as the oft-challenged head of America's favorite TV family on The Cosby Show, one of the most successful TV programs of the 1980s and early 90s. But before and after The Cosby Show, Cosby made a name for himself with his riotous standup performances that manage to appeal to audiences of any and all ages and sensibilities. This highly-decorated entertainer has nine Grammys and four Emmys to his credit.

Of course, The Meadows has much to offer aside from this series of concerts. Numerous table games and slot machines, including exclusive high-stakes areas, provide the thrill and fun of Las Vegas, not to mention the racetrack itself. It also has restaurants with premiere views of the racetrack and gaming floor, as well as a bowling lane suitable for visitors of all ages.

Whether the draw for you is the entertainers or the excitement of the games, The Meadows Racetrack & Casino in Washington offers a wide variety of fun this summer. You can find out more about the 50th anniversary celebrations or about The Meadows in general by visiting the website at www.meadowsgaming.com.

In 1963, the world saw the first flight of the Boeing 727 Jet. Jack Nicklaus won his first (of six) Masters, and National League Rookie of the Year Pete Rose was just starting to win over baseball fans. We all got our first zip codes, and, oh yeah: gas was a quarter and four cents.

And on June 29th of that year, The Meadows Racetrack & Casino opened in Washington, and this year they're celebrating their anniversary. To honor this achievement, they will be hosting a concert series coming this summer, featuring world-renowned musicians and entertainers that represent the entire 50-year span of their existence.

The concert series starts with "Weird Al" Yankovic on June 1. Weird Al is known for his lighthearted parodies and sendups of popular songs. His sense of humor first hit airwaves in 1984 with "Eat It," a parody of Michael Jackson's "Beat It," complete with a video parody as well. And for the past 30 years, Weird Al has continued his musical satire act with great success.

Later that month, on June 29, The Meadows will welcome The O'Jays, a R&B and soul group with huge hits through the 60s and 70s. This group of Rock and Roll Hall of Famers was popular for decades, and they are perhaps best known for their hit "Love Train." The O'Jays' concert will feature a fireworks and a show along with special guest, Gladys Knight.

On August 3 Ronnie Dunn, one half of the outrageously successful country duo Brooks & Dunn, will be performing at the Mylan Charity Classic Concert at The Meadows. Brooks & Dunn was one of the most popular country acts through the 90s and 00s, accumulating dozens of country music awards and a handful of Grammys to boot. And Dunn has seen continued success since embarking on his

Catholic Joke:

An old nun who was living in a convent next to a construction site noticed the coarse language of the workers and decided to spend some time with them to correct their ways. She decided she would take her lunch; sit with the workers; and talk with them. She put her sandwich in a brown bag and walked over to the spot where the men were eating. Sporting a big smile, she walked up to the group and asked: "And do you men know Jesus Christ?" They shook their heads and looked at each other. Very confused. One of the workers looked up into the steelworks and yelled out, "Anybody up there know Jesus Christ?" One of the steelworkers yelled down, "Why?" The worker yelled back, "'Cause his Mum's here with his lunch."

Nursing Mom

A man was riding a bus, minding his own business, when the gorgeous woman sitting next to him started to breast feed her baby. The baby wouldn't take it, so she said, "Come on sweetie, eat it all up or I'll have to give it to this nice man next to us." Five minutes later, the baby was still not feeding, so she said, "Come on, honey. Take it or I'll give it to this nice man here." Finally the anxious man blurted out, "Come on kid, make up your mind! I was supposed to get off four stops ago!"

Chinese Businessman

A Chinese guy goes into a Jewish-owned establishment to buy black bras, size 38. The Jewish storekeeper, known for his skills as a businessman, says that black bras are rare and that he is finding it very difficult to buy them from his suppliers. Therefore, he has to charge $50.00 for them. The Chinese guy buys 25 bras. He returns a few days later and this time orders fifty. The Jewish owner tells him that they have become even harder to get and charges him $60.00 each. The Chinese guy returns a month later and buys the store's remaining stock of 50, and this time for $75.00 each. The Jewish owner is somewhat puzzled by the large demand for black size 38 bras and asks the Chinese guy, "...please tell me - What do you do with all these black bras?" The Chinese guy answers: "I cut them in half and sell them as skull caps to Jewish men for $200.00 each."

The Crabby Cabbie

A successful businessman flew to Vegas for the weekend to gamble. He lost the shirt off his back, and had nothing left but a quarter and the second half of his round trip ticket. All he needed to do was somehow get to the airport, and then he'd be home-free. So he went out to the front of the casino where there was a cab waiting. He got in and explained his situation to the cabbie. He promised to send the driver money from home. He offered him his credit card numbers, his drivers license number, his address, etc... The cabbie said, "If you don't have fifteen dollars, get the hell out of my cab!" So the businessman was forced to hitchhike to the airport and was barely in time to catch his flight. One year later the businessman, having worked long and hard to regain his financial success, returned to Vegas and this time he won big. Feeling pretty good about himself, he went out to the front of the casino to get a cab ride back to the airport. Well who should he see out there, at the end of a long line of cabs, but his old buddy who had refused to give him a ride when he was down on his luck. The businessman thought for a moment about how he could make the guy pay for his lack of charity, and he hit on a plan. The businessman got in the first cab in the line, "How much for a ride to the airport," he asked? "Fifteen bucks," came the reply. "And how much for you to give me a bj on the way?" "What?! Get out of my cab." The businessman got into the back of each cab in the long line and asked the same questions, with the same result. When he got to his old friend at the back of the line, he got in and asked, "How much for a ride to the airport?" The cabbie replied, "Fifteen bucks." The businessman said, "OK," and off they went. Then, as they drove slowly past the long line of cabs, the businessman gave a big smile and thumbs up sign to each of the other drivers.

Dragons

A father has three daughters that are all getting married on the same day. He asks his oldest daughter, "Who do you wish to marry? She says, "Father, I wish to marry the man with three dragons on his chest." He walks over to his second daughter and asks her the same question. She replies, "Father, I wish to marry the man with two dragons on his chest." He then goes to his youngest daughter and asks her the same thing: "Who do you wish to marry?" She replies, "I wish to marry the man with one dragon on the floor!"

Fair Exchange

Two couples go away on a two-week holiday together. After a week they are thoroughly bored. The men decide that if they change partners maybe life will take on new meaning. They all agree that it's an experiment worth trying. The morning after the exchange, one fellow says: "I'm glad we tried this. It was exhilarating. Football Animals

During the Super Bowl, there was another football game of note between the big animals and the small animals. The big animals were crushing small animals and at half-time, the coach made a passionate speech to rally the little animals. At the start of the second half the big animals had the ball. The first play, the elephant got stopped for no gain. The second play, the rhino was stopped for no gain. On third down, the hippo was thrown for a 5 yard loss. The defense huddled around the coach and he asked excitedly, "Who stopped the elephant?" "I did," said the centipede. "Who stopped the rhino?" "Uh, that was me too," said the centipede. "And how about the hippo? Who hit him for a 5 yard loss?" "Well, that was me as well," said the centipede. "So where were you during the first half?" demanded the coach. "Well," said the centipede, "I was having my ankles taped."

The Engineer at the Golf Course

A pastor, a doctor and an engineer wait for a particularly slow group of golfers. The engineer fumes, "What's with these guys? We've been waiting for 15 minutes!" The pastor says, "Hey, here comes the groundskeeper. Let's have a word with him." "Say, George, what's with that group ahead of us? They're rather slow, aren't they?" the doctor asks. The groundskeeper tells them that the other golfers are a group of blind firefighters who lost their sight saving the clubhouse from a fire and that they come and play for free whenever they want. The group is silent for a moment. The pastor says, "That's so sad. I will say a special prayer for them tonight." The doctor says, "Good idea. I'm going to contact my ophthalmologist buddy and see if there's anything he can do for them." The engineer says, "Why can't these guys play at night?"

Golf Buddies

There was an old man named Bill, and one of the things he most enjoyed was playing golf with his old buddy Fred. Bill's wife always commented on how happy he looked after a game. But one day he came home from their weekly game looking terrible and very tired. His wife asked, "What's the matter, Bill? You always seem so happy after golf and you look miserable right now." Bill said, "Well, something terrible happened. Fred had a heart attack on the first hole." "My God, honey!" said the wife, rushing to comfort him. "That must've been terrible!" "It was," he said. "All day long it was: hit the ball, drag Fred to the ball, and then hit it again..."

Golf Advice

Out on the golf course, a beautiful woman asks three men for some help with her putt. "Whichever of you can help me sink this putt, I will give that guy a bj he will never forget." The teenager walks over, eyes up the putt for a couple of minutes, and finally says, "Lady, aim that putt six inches to the right of the hole. The ball will break left 12 inches from the hole and go in the cup." The middle-aged man walks up and says, "Don't listen to the youngster! Aim 12 inches to the right, and the ball will break left two feet from the hole and fall into the cup." The elderly man looks at the other two men in disgust, picks up the ball, drops it into the cup, unzips his fly and says, "That's a Gimme."

Golf Fatality

A guy goes golfing with his girlfriend. As he tees off, she steps into ladies' tee and gets hit in the head with his drive. She is pronounced D.O.A. and taken to the morgue. The coroner calls him in and says, "She definitely died from a blow to the head caused by the golf ball. But the only thing we can't understand is why was there a golf ball in her butt?" "Oh," he replies, "that must have been my mulligan."

Golf Genie

A husband and wife, out enjoying a round of golf, were about to tee off on the third hole, which was lined with beautiful homes. The wife hit her shot and the ball began to slice - her shot was headed directly at a very large plate glass window. Much to her surprise, the ball smashed through the window and shattered it into a million pieces. They felt compelled to see what damage was done and drove off to see what happened. When they peeked inside the house, they found no one there. The husband called out and no one answered. Upon further investigation, they saw a small gentleman sitting on the couch with a turban on his head. The wife asked the man, "Do you live here?" "No, someone just hit a ball through the window, knocked over the vase you see there, freeing me from that little bottle. I am so grateful!" he answered. The husband asked, "Are you a genie?" "Oh, why, yes I am. In fact, I am so grateful I will grant you two wishes, and the third I will keep for myself," the man replied. The husband and wife agreed on two wishes - one was for a scratch handicap for the husband, to which the wife readily agreed. The other was for an income of $1,000,000 per year forever. The genie nodded his head and said, "Done!" The genie now said, "For my wish, I would like to have my way with your wife. I have not been with a woman for many years, and after all, I made you a scratch golfer and a millionaire." The husband and wife agreed. After the genie and wife were finished, the genie asked the wife, "How long have you been married?" To which she responded, "Three years." The genie then asked, "How old is your husband?" To which she replied, "31 years old." The genie then asked, "And how long has he believed in this genie crap?"

The Golfer's Confession

A man goes to the confessional. "Forgive me father, for I have sinned." "What is your sin, my child?" The priest asks back. "Well," the man starts, "I used some horrible language this week and feel absolutely terrible." "When did you do use this awful language?" said the priest. "I was golfing and hit an incredible drive that looked like it was going to go over 250 yards, but it struck a phone line that was hanging over the fairway and fell straight down to the ground after going only about 100 yards." "Is that when you swore?" "No, Father." Said the man. "After that, a squirrel ran out of the bushes and grabbed my ball in his mouth and began to run away." Is THAT when you swore?"

asked the Father again. "Well, no." said the man, "You see, as the squirrel was running, an eagle came down out of the sky, grabbed the squirrel in his talons and began to fly away!" "Is THAT when you swore?" asked the amazed Priest. "No, not yet." The man replied. "As the eagle carried the squirrel away in his claws, it flew towards the green. And as it passed over a bit of forest near the green, the squirrel dropped my ball." "Did you swear THEN?" asked the now impatient Priest. "No, because as the ball fell it struck a tree, bounced through some bushes, careened off a big rock, and rolled through a sand trap onto the green and stopped within six inches of the hole." "You missed the freaking putt, didn't you?" sighed the Priest.

The Golfer and the Buttercups

A man is participating in a golf tournament. He was left to golf with just his caddy. On his tee-off, the golfer's ball lands in a patch of buttercups. The caddy tells the golfer he can take the ball onto the course, and he won't take a one stroke penalty. However, the golfer refuses and takes the ball out of the buttercups and takes the stroke penalty. Suddenly, Mother Nature appears. "What you just did was amazing. I am so proud that you enjoy nature and all of its beauty. For your reward, I will give you a lifetime supply of butter." "Thanks," says the man. "But where were you last week when my ball landed in the pussy willows?"

The Golfer

There was a man named George who got a new job. His fellow employees always met for a round of golf every Saturday. They asked George to meet them at 10:00 Saturday morning. George replied that he would love to meet them, but he may be 10 minutes late. On Saturday morning George was there at exactly 10:00. He golfed right handed and won the round. Next Saturday rolls around, and George says that he will be there, but he may be 10 minutes late again. He shows up right on time, golf's left handed, and wins the round. This continues for the next few weeks, with George always saying that he may be 10 minutes late, and then always winning the round golfing, either left or right handed. The other employees are getting tired of this, and decided to ask him what the deal was. They said, "George, every Saturday you say you may be ten minutes late. You never are. Then you show up and golf with either right handed or left handed, and always win. What is up with that?" George replies, "Well, I am a very superstitious kind of guy. Every Saturday when I wake up, I look over at my wife. If she is sleeping on her left side, I golf left handed. If she is sleeping on her right side, I golf right handed." "Well," one of the employees questioned, "What happens if she is laying on her back?" George replies, "Then I am 10 minutes late."

Hoshimota

An American businessman is on a business trip in Japan and hires a hooker. The whole night, this Japanese hooker keeps screaming: "Hoshimota! Hoshimota!" He can't quite remember what the word means, but he's sure he's pleased the hooker to best of his ability. The next morning, he goes to play a game of golf with his Japanese business partner when he makes a hole-in-one. Everyone is congratulating him in Japanese and he can't think anything to say but "HOSHIMOTA!" Concerned, his partner turns to him "What do you mean it's in the wrong hole?"

The Army Hospital

An army major visits the sick soldiers, goes up to one private and asks: "What's your problem, Soldier?" "Chronic syphilis, Sir" "What treatment are you getting?" "Five minutes with the wire brush each day." "What's your ambition?" "To get back to the front, Sir." "Good man." says the Major. He goes to the next bed. "What's your problem, Soldier?" "Chronic piles, Sir" "What treatment are you getting?" "Five minutes with the wire brush each day." "What's your ambition?" "To get back to the front, Sir." "Good man." says the Major. He goes to the next bed. "What's your problem, Soldier?" "Chronic gum disease, Sir" "What treatment are you getting?" "Five minutes with the wire brush each day." "What's your ambition?" "To get the wire brush before the other two, Sir"

Hot as Hell

A real tough guy dies and goes to hell, well he tells Satan that it won't be all that bad, and thinks hell's all a joke. So Satan tells the demons to turn the thermostat way up, and lock him up for three days. After three days Satan goes to check up on him, but he says, "I live in the Midwest and many summer weekends are hotter than this." So Satan tells the demons to turn the temperature all the way up, and to leave him in for six weeks. So after six weeks, Satan goes to check up on him, but he says "I grew up in the Midwest and I can remember dry spells that were hotter and longer than this." Well, this really gets to Satan, so he tells the demons to turn the temperature all the way down, and leave him in for six months. After six months, Satan goes to check up on him, and he is sitting there shivering, asking,, "What happened? Did the Pirates win the World Series?"

How does it feel?

Sandra and her husband Jim are expecting a baby in 2 months. One day Jim comes home from work and asks Sandra, "Why haven't we had sex in so long?" "You know I'm worried it will hurt the baby." Sandra told him. "I'll be really gentle. I promise." Jim tells her. Sandra protests but Jim manages to finally convince her that he won't hurt the baby so they have sex. Two months later Sandra gives birth to a baby boy. When the baby was born he looked at the doctor and says, "Are you my father?" The doctor shakes his head, then to Sandra, "Are you my father?" "No, I'm your mother." she tells him. Finally the baby sees Jim and says, "Are you my father?" Jim nods, The baby starts hitting him on the head and says "How does this feel?"

Baseball Humor

Why are baseball players so cool? They always have their fans there!

Golf Ball Hunt

Off the seventh tee, Joe sliced his shot deep into a wooded ravine. He took his eight iron and clambered down the embankment in search of his lost ball. After many long minutes of hacking at the underbrush, he spotted something glistening in the leaves. As he drew nearer, he discovered that it was an eight iron in the hands of a skeleton! Joe immediately called out to his friend, "Jack, I've got trouble down here!" "What's the matter?" Jack asked from the edge of the ravine. "Bring me my wedge," Joe shouted. "You can't get out of here with an eight iron!"

Icy Blonde

How did the blonde die ice fishing? She got run over by the Zamboni!

Jags and Bucs

If the Jacksonville Jaguars are known as the "Jags" and the Tampa Bay Buccaneers are known as the "Bucs," what does that make the Tennessee Titans?

Joe's Accident

There was a man named Joe playing baseball on his wedding day. The guy at the plate hits the ball, and it nails Joe right in the genitals. His team mates rush him to the hospital and take him into the emergency room. As he's lying on the table the doctor looks at him and says, "That's pretty bad. I don't think there's anything I can do for that." Joe says, "Oh please doc it's my wedding night. You've gotta do something!" The doctor then says, "Well, I can put two tongue depressors around it and wrap it with gauze tap to immobilize it." Joe says, "Oh thank you, doc. Just don't tell my fiancée." They get married and later that night Joe's lying on the bed and his wife comes out in a sexy outfit. She unbuttons it, grabs her breasts and says, "Do you see these beautiful breasts? No one else has ever seen these. I've been saving them just for you." "That's nothing," Joe replies. He pulls down his pants and says, "Look at this. It's not even out of the box yet!"

Lamaze Class

The room was full of pregnant women and their partners. The Lamaze class was in full swing. The instructor was teaching the women how to breathe properly, and informing the men how to give the necessary assurances at this stage of the plan. "Ladies, exercise is good for you," announced the teacher. "Walking is especially beneficial. And, gentlemen, it wouldn't hurt you to take the time to go walking with your partner!" The room was very quiet. Finally, a man in the middle of the group raised his hand. "Yes?" asked the instructor. "Is it all right if she carries a golf bag while we walk?"

18-legged Fly Catcher

What has 18 legs and catches flies? A baseball team.

Fishing Line

There's a fine line between fishing and standing on the shore looking like an idiot.

A Little Head

This guy with a really small head walks into a bar. The bartender asks him, "Why is your head so small?" He replies, "I was stuck on this island and there was nothing but beautiful women there who had never seen a man before. So I had sex with all of them. Their leader, who was the most beautiful of all, had the power to grant anybody who pleased her people one wish, and she said I could have that wish. So I asked her to have sex with me. she said she would grant me anything but that, so I said, "Would a little head be out of the question?"

Golf LOFT

Three bad golfers were teeing off when they saw a pro walk by. One guy yelled out, "Hey, pro, you want to join us?" The pro figured he didn't have anything else to do, so he got his clubs and joined them. The first guy walked up to the tee and hit. The ball landed on another fairway. The guy turns around and asks the pro, "What did I do wrong?" The pro looks at him and says "LOFT." The guy pretends to understand this and put his club back in his bag. The next guy walks up to the tee and hits. The ball slices into the parking lot. The guy asks what he did wrong. The pro again says "LOFT." The last guy walks up and hits. The ball goes five feet off the tee. The pro says "LOFT." The first guy walks up to the pro and asks, "What does LOFT mean if everybody sucks? The pro says, "You all suffer from Lack Of Freaking Talent."

Lucky Browns Fan

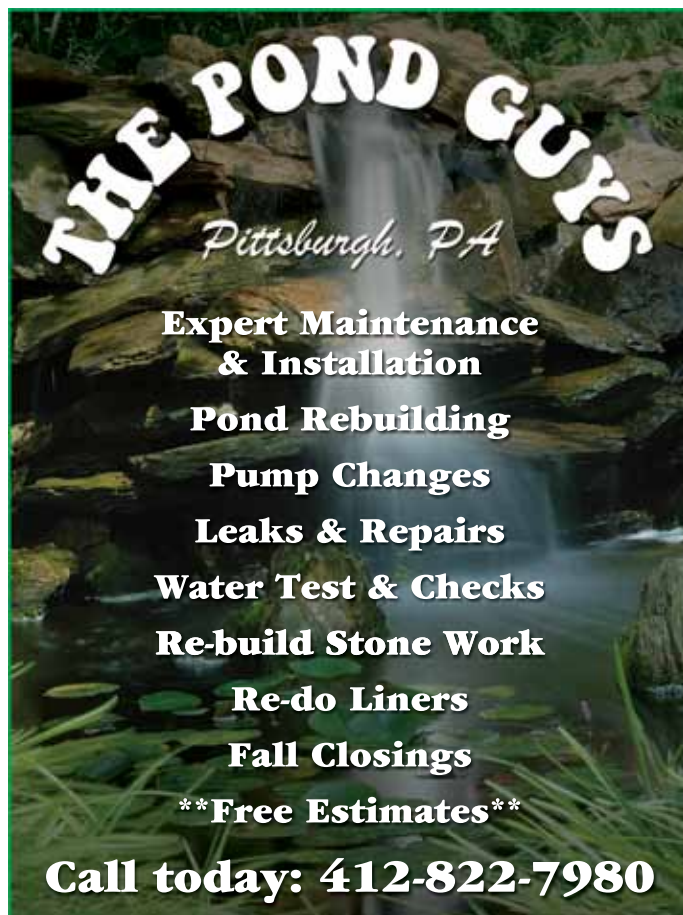

A lucky Brown's fan once won the lottery for $20,000,000 and went to pick up all of his money. But when he got there, the guy who was in charge of the money said that the money would be paid out over twenty years. So the Brown's fan got really honked off and says: "If you're not going to give me all my money, I want my dollar back."

Lucky Frog

I took a day off from work to play golf. I was on the fourth hole, when I discovered a small frog sitting on the green. I paid it no attention until I heard, "Ribbit. 9-iron." That's curious, I thought, but decided to trust the frog. I pulled out a 9-iron and sunk a hole-in-one. Amazed, I picked up the frog and asked where we should go next. "Ribbit. Vegas." We went to Vegas, and I asked the frog what we should do first. "Ribbit. Roulette." We went up to the roulette table, and I won big. I took my earnings and got the best room in the hotel. I asked the frog if there was anything I could do to repay it. "Ribbit. Kiss me." I figured, what the hell, and I kissed the frog. It turned into a 15-year-old girl. That's how she ended up in my room, your Honor, and if I'm lying, my name's not R. Kelly.

Bungee Jumping in Mexico

Two Americans open a bungee jumping business in Mexico. They set up on the square of a small village. Bob jumps, bounces at the end of the cord and flies back up by the platform. Jeff isn't able to catch his friend, but he notices that Bob has a few cuts and scratches. Bob falls again, bounces, and comes back up. This time, he is bruised and bleeding. Again, Jeff misses pulling Bob up. The third time it happens, Bob comes back pretty messed up -- he's got a couple of broken bones and is almost unconscious. Luckily, Jeff finally catches him and says, "Holy cow, what happened? Was the cord too long?" "No," says Bob. "The cord was fine, but the birthday party down there thinks I'm a piñata!"

Milkman

Early one morning, the milkman was doing his rounds. He stopped at a house to ask for his monthly fee, only to find a small boy at the door slurping from a beer bottle, smoking a Havana cigar, and with his arm around what appeared to be a call-girl. Surprised, the milkman asked the boy if his parents were home. "Does it freaking look like it?"

Mini Meanie

The golf course was haunted by a malicious, evil leprechaun who exploited the ambitions of the poorer players. He popped up beside one unfortunate man who was participating in a club competition. "Look," he said, "if you agree never to court a woman, flirt with a girl or marry, I'll help you win." "Done," shouted the young golfer. The leprechaun was very pleased with conniving ways, and chuckled merrily. When the golfer was in the clubhouse being praised by the other members, the leprechaun popped up on the shelf of the locker. "Hey," said the little elf, "I have to have your name for my records. What is it?" "Father Murphy," grinned the golfer as he adjusted his Roman collar.

Misguided

A group of hikers were being led through the wilderness by a guide. On the third day, the hikers noticed that they had been traveling in circles. "We're lost!" One of the hikers complained. "And you said you were the best guide in the United States." "I am," the guide answered, "but I think we may have wandered into Canada."

Daddy Gave a Mommy a Big Clock

One of the women with whom I work, Donna, has a son in third grade. Part of his daily homework is to practice his spelling for his weekly tests. So, together, Donna and her son go over the words for the test, both meaning and spelling of the words. A few weeks ago, her son brought home his test. He scored 97%, missing only one word. The word was "clock." Part of the test was to use each spelling list word in a sentence. His sentence? "My dad gave my mom a clock for her birthday" -- only it seems he'd accidentally omitted the letter "L." Donna said there was no comment on the test, just the biggest check mark she had ever seen.

Foul-Mouthed Hockey

Q) What did the hockey goalie say to his teammate? A) Let's get the "puck" out of here!

Mr. Macho

A typical macho man married typical good-looking woman and, after the wedding, laid down the following rules: "I'll be home when I want, if I want and at what time I want -- and I don't expect any hassle from you. I expect dinner to be on the table unless I tell you otherwise. I'll go hunting, fishing, boozing, and card-playing when I want with my old buddies and don't you give me a hard time about it. Those are my rules. Any comments?" His new bride said, "No, that's fine with me. Just understand that there'll be sex here at 7 o'clock every night -- whether you're here or not."

Drunk Musicians

The St. Louis Symphony was playing Beethoven's Ninth one night. One bass player said to the other: "We don't have much to do. Let's go next door for a few drinks." They stayed for a while and got a little tipsy. One said to the other: "To give us more time, I tied the pages of the music together so the conductor will have to untie it when he gets near the end." They staggered back into the auditorium just in time for the finish. The next day when someone asked their friend how the concert was they replied: "The most exciting part was at the end of the Ninth when the score was tied and the bassists were loaded."

Hippie and the Nun

One day a Hippie gets onto a bus. He sees a beautiful nun and sits next to her. He turns too the nun and says, "Will you have sex with me?" Surprised by the question, the Noun answers, "No!" and gets off at the next stop. After she gets off the bus the bus driver turns to the Hippie and says, "I over heard your conversation, and I think I know how you can get the Nun to have sex with you." The Hippie asks how'. The bus driver tells him that every night at around 12 o'clock the nun goes to the cemetery and prays. If you go there and dress up as God you can demand her to have sex with you. The Hippie, happy about his new knowledge decides to dress up as God the next night and go there. When he goes there he sees the nun praying. He goes up to her and says, "I am God, I order you to have sex with me." The nun answers, "Sure, but can it be anal because I don't want to loose my virginity." They agree and have their way. After it is all done the Hippie rips off his mask and says, "HAHA I'm the Hippie." Then the Nun rips off her mask and says, "HAHA, I'm the bus driver!"

Doctor's Orders

A woman walks into her doctor's office and says, "Doctor, I need to lose weight fast." And the doctor says, "Instead of putting food in your mouth, try putting it up your butt." Two months later she comes in and says, "Doctor, it's a dream come true. I'm half the size I was." But the doctor notices that she is bouncing up and down up and down... and he asks, "But where did you get this twitch?" The woman replies, "I don't have a nervous twitch, I'm chewing bubble gum."

National Pastime

Show me a man that thinks baseball is the national pastime and I'll show you a man who never played doctor when he was a kid!

Mental Patients at a Baseball Game

A hospital psychologist decided to take his mental patients to a baseball game. He coached his patients with simple cues to avoid unwanted anxiety and social awkwardness. When the day of the game arrived, everything seemed to be going well. As the national anthem started, the doctor yelled, "Up, nuts!" The inmates stood up. After the anthem, he yelled, "Down, nuts!" They all sat. After a home run, he yelled, "Cheer, nuts!" They all broke into applause. Since everything was going smoothly, he left his assistant in charge while he ran to the restroom. When he returned, there was a riot in progress. "What happened?" he asked his assistant. "Everything was fine until some guy showed up selling peanuts!"

Boudreaux and Pedro

One day ole Boudreax was going out in his boat. Ole Pedro ask Boudreax, "What ya got in that boat there?" Boudreax replied, "I got Duct tape." "What ya gonna do with duct tape?" he asked. Boudreax replied, "Gonna catch me some ducks." Sure enough that afternoon, his boat was full of ducks. The next week ole Boudreax went out and Pedro said, "Hey Boudreax what ya got in the boat there?" He told him he had crab grass. "What ya gonna do with crab grass?" asked Pedro. "Gonna catch me some crabs," said Boudreax. "You can't catch crabs with crab grass," said Pedro. But sure enough that afternoon he had the boat full of crabs. The next week ole Boudreaux went out and Pedro asked, "Hey, what you got in the boat?" Boudreaux said, "Got me some Pussywillow." Pedro says, "Hold on man, I'm getting my hat and coming with ya."

The Perfect Husband

Several men are in the locker room of a golf club. A cell phone on a bench rings and a man engages the hands-free speaker-function and begins to talk. Everyone else in the room stops to listen.

MAN: "Hello"

WOMAN: "Honey, it's me. Are you at the club?"

MAN: "Yes."

WOMAN: "I'm at the mall now and found this beautiful leather coat. It's only $1,000. Is it OK if I buy it?"

MAN: "Sure, go ahead if you like it that much."

WOMAN: "I also stopped by the Mercedes dealership and saw the new 2007 models. I saw one I really liked."

MAN: "How much?"

WOMAN: "$65,000."

MAN: "OK, but for that price I want it with all the options."

WOMAN: "Great! Oh, and one more thing. The house we wanted last year is back on the market. They're asking $950,000."

MAN: "Well, then go ahead and give them an offer, but just offer $900,000."

WOMAN: "OK. I'll see you later! I love you!"

MAN: "Bye, I love you, too."

The man hangs up. The other men in the locker room are looking at him in astonishment.

Then he smiles and asks: "Anyone know whose phone this is?"

Forever Plaid

The proprietor of an adult store steps out to run a few errands and leaves his employee in charge. A woman comes in and wants to purchase a sex toy. She looks at the shelf behind the register. "How much for the white one?" "$10." "How much for the black one?" "$20." She buys the white one. A little later, another woman comes in and also wants to buy a sex toy. After asking the clerk for prices, she decides on the black one. A third lady comes in for a sex toy. She checks the price of the white one, the black one and asks about the plaid one. She makes her purchase and leaves. The proprietor returns and asks how things went. "Great! I sold a white one, a black one, and I got thirty buck for your thermos!"

Jesus and Moses Play Golf

Jesus and Moses are playing golf and they're on the tenth hole. Moses hits the ball and it heads straight for a pond. Just before the ball hits the water, the pond parts and the ball rolls up onto the green. Jesus winds up and hits one about to the same spot. Jesus' ball hits the water and skips across. All of a sudden, lightning flashes and a ball drops from the sky. A fish swallows it, a bird picks up the fish and drops the ball onto a turtle, that walks over to the hole and drops it in. Moses turns to Jesus and says, "I hate it when your dad plays!"

Golf Love Poem

I think that I shall never see a hazard rougher than an tree;
A tree o'er which my ball must fly
if on the green it is to lie;
A tree which stands that green to guard,
and makes the shot extremely hard;
A tree whose leafy arms extend to kill the six iron shot I send;
A tree that stands in silence there,
while angry golfers rave and swear.
Irons were made for fools like me who cannot ever miss a tree.

Practice

What do you call parachuting lawyers? Skeet.

Pigskin Pro

What do you get when you cross a football player with a hooker? An illegal procedure.

- --Honus Wagner, turning down an offer of $2000

2nd to 3rd

Why does it take longer to run from second base to third base than it takes to run from first to second? Because you have a short stop between second and third.

10 Reasons to Date a Hockey Player

1. They always wear protection
2. They have great hands
3. They are used to scoring
4. They have great stamina
5. They find the opening and get it in
6. They never miss the target

7. They know how to use their wood
8. They have long sticks
9. They know when to play rough
10. Because baseball players only know how to hit balls.

Redneck Dog

Two rednecks were sitting on their porch one afternoon and looked down at their dog who was licking his privates. One of the guys looked at the other and said, "I wish that I could do that." The other one then said, 'Don't be stupid, man - that dog would bite you!'

Redneck Poetry

Robert Frost and a redneck came to heaven's gate at the same time. St. Peter stood at the gate with instructions for the two: "You cannot enter the gates of heaven until you can make up a poem and recite it to me using the word 'Timbuktu' in it." Robert Frost stepped up and recited a beautiful poem and was let in the gates. The redneck stepped up and St. Peter said, "Now, what is your poem?" The Redneck paused and scratched. "Oh! I got it," said the redneck, "here it goes. . . Me and Tim a hunting' went, Met three maidens in a tent, They was three and we was two, So I bucked one and Tim bucked two."

Volleyball Humor

"Don't trust volleyball players with your drinks." "Why?" "They might spike 'em."

Building Big Religious Families

A Catholic, a Baptist and a Mormon are bragging about the size of their families. "I have four boys and my wife is expecting another," says the Catholic. "One more son, and I'll have a basketball team," "That's nothing," says the Baptist. "I have 10 boys now, and my wife is pregnant with another child. One more son, and I'll have a football team." "That's nothing," says the Mormon. "I have 17 wives. One more wife, and I'll have a golf course."

Remarks Never Heard at Daytona 500

- None for me, thanks. That Skoal will do a number on your teeth.
- Hey, shut up! I can't hear the race!
- Sex with your sister? Man, that's sick.
- My God, this is a splendid Merlot.
- Hey, you with the large breasts, out of the way. We're trying to watch a race here.
- Jeeves, be a good man and retrieve the Wall Street Journal from my attach case. Then fetch me some clotted cream for my scone.
- What a coincidence, Hank, all my friends are boycotting Hooters, too.

- These are even better seats than we had for the Lionel Richie concert.
- Good morning, Mr. Trickle. We at 'Depends' understand you're looking for a new corporate sponsor.
- Filling in for Dale 'The Intimidator' Earnhardt today is substitute driver, Michael 'Lord of the Dance' Flatley.
- And now, singing our national anthem, international recording artist Boy George.

Football Fan To The Rescue

Two boys are playing football in Central Park when one is attacked by a rabid rottweiler. Thinking quickly, the other boy rips a board off of a nearby fence, wedges it down the dog's collar and twists, breaking the dog's neck. A reporter strolling by sees the incident, and rushes over to interview the boy. "Young Giants Fan Saves Friend From Vicious Animal," he writes in his notebook. "But I'm not a Giants fan," the little hero replies. "Sorry, since we are in New York, I just assumed you were," says the reporter. "Little Jets Fan Rescues Friend From Horrific Attack," he writes in his notebook. "I'm not a Jets fan either," the boy says. "I assumed everyone in New York was either for the Giants or Jets. What team do you root for?" the reporter asks. "I'm a Cowboys fan," the child says. The reporter starts a new sheet in his notebook and writes, "Little Redneck Maniac Kills Beloved Family Pet".
